> The increased supply of cotton, and the probability of an increased export, are thus mated by a leading commercial journal: "The supply of cotton coming into the Southern ports at present, largely exceeds the consumptive ability of the Northern mills. The receipts at New York, during and W.E. Butler, all of Jackson, Tennessee, pied for slielter of troops and for sick and the expired parties of the present month have been at the rate of 8/3/000 balos per Attorney on Wednaday last, annum-very largely in excess of the high est rate of Northern consumption during the reacs of peace; and yet, with a large ratio importation, the stock at New Orleans is 0,000 mere than, at the same period, for an average of four years before the war. At New York the stock is 25,000 bales larger than was held at the same period of 1859, at all the Northern ports. It is clear, therefore, we have reached a point at which the exports of cotton must very largely increase. On the 10th inst. there were at New Or eans fifteen vessels bound for European ports, with an aggregate tonnage of 7,383 tons, so that the means are at hand for inmediately executing any foreign orders for notion. It is not reasonable to suppose that the rapid accumulation of cotton may induce the early shipment of large amounts of the staple, to forestall a probable decline in blue hat, red hair and cross eyes don't stop price. At all the ports, there are new 275,-000 bales of cotton; fully a six month's con-sumption for the North; and 3ct cotton is coming into the Southern ports at the rate of about 40,000 bales per week, or 2,000,000 per annum. With such an enormous excess: in the forthcoming supply over the Northern demand, it is impossible that we can have any other result than an early export of cotton upon a large scale. The effects of such a in aid of the family of Wirz, the Andermovement upon exchange and gold are very sonville jailor. obvious.

Danville Looking Up .- The Danville Register gives, in a small compass, an enprogress in that place. It says:

General Lee-His Acceptance of the Presidency of Washington College-Official Announcement.

The gratifying duty of announcing to the country the acceptance by Gen. Robert E. Les of the presidency of Washington colege, has been develved upon the undersigned by the board of trustees of that institu tion The accession of this distinguished gentleman to the faculty of this yonerable college, and as its honored chief, is destind, we trust, to mark the commencement of a new ora in its history, and most cordially do we congratulate its numerous friends on this most suspicious event. The high, noble and patriotic motives which impelled our beloved chief, in accepting the honorable, but comparatively humble position tendered to him by the authorities of the college, must win for him a new title to the admiration and love of his countrymen. The college under the administration and supervision of Gen. Lee, will resume its exercises on the 14th.

To Preserve Tomatoex-Prof. Mapes says: If tomatous are slightly scalded and skinned and put into bottles, and those set in boiling enter for a few minutes, and carked and caled, the fruit will keep as long as desired, and if eaten when first opened will have the same tasts as when just picked from the vines." Probably a better way is to peel the tomatoes and boil slightly so as to expel the sir, then put in heated bottles and cork at once. All depends on the exclusion of the air. The more perfectly this is done the
